Use Gentleness.
Be gentle in stimulating the kidneys, otherwise you will excite and weaken them. The happiest results follow the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to overcome renal inactivity. Avoid the unmedicated, fiery stimulants of commerce. The kidneys have a delicate membrane easily irritated, and upon this the action of such stimulants is pernicious. Malarial complaints, indigestion, rheumatism, neuritis and biliousness succumb to the corrective influence of the Bitters.

Pill Clothes.

The good pill has a good coat. The pill coat serves two purposes; it protects the pill, enabling it to retain all its remedial value, and it disguises the taste for the palate. Some pill coats are too heavy; they will not dissolve in the stomach, and the pills they cover pass through the system as harmless as a bread pellet. Other coats are too light, and permit the speedy deterioration of the pill. After 80 years exposure, Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills have been found as effective as if just fresh from the laboratory. Bicycle Prices Fall.
After several years of exorbitantly large profits the manufacturers of bicycles have been compelled to very largely reduce their prices. The public actually refused to longer pay $100 for a machine which can be built for one-quarter that amount.
A few makers saw this some time ago and put on the market cheaper machines at very greatly reduced prices which so cut into the business of the higher priced manufacturers that in pure self defense they were compelled to bid good-bye to their old high prices.

Why should not the same thing occur with type-writing machines? They no doubt cost considerably less to produce than bicycles, and yet some of them are selling at the ridiculously high price of $100. It is fair to infer that a machine which sells at $50 costs close to $15 to manufacture.
If a few large department stores in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, etc., would arrange for large quantities to be manufactured for them by some one outside of a trust the prices would come down to reasonable figures as have those of bicycles.

Electricity in Ship Yards.
The extensive adoption of electric power in shipyards is only a question of time, for already many of the most progressive shipbuilding concerns in this country and Europe have realized the great advantages offered by electric power, owing to the portability of the apparatus, which can be used in any position and for many purposes without rigid mechanical connections. Among the newest applications in this direction, says the Philadelphia Record, are electrically driven capstans and electric lifts. It is a great convenience in a shipyard to have a large number of electrically driven capstans, which can be started at any moment by shutting a switch. By means of these capstans hand cars, on which material is placed, are hauled in any desired direction by the distribution of snatch blocks over the whole area. By means of the same capstans the plates and angles are also lifted into their places. The electric capstan has proved one of the most useful applications of electric transmission of power. In shipyards there is very little slope, so that the keels are laid at a great height from the ground. For instance, if the molded depth of a vessel is thirty feet the height of the keel at the forward end will probably be fifty feet. Formerly a high stairway was used, and in this way much valuable time was consumed, but the most progressive yards have adopted electric hoists to transport men and materials to the upper decks.

Firing Heavy Guns Immersed.
An interesting and very suggestive experiment has been made by British naval officers in the way of firing solid shots from heavy guns immersed in deep water.

A 110-pound gun was used which was anchored upon a platform at the bottom of Portsmouth harbor. After being loaded the gun was pointed toward a target set in the water seventy-five feet from its muzzle. The target was composed of oak beams and planks, twenty-one inches in thickness. Behind this was placed the hull of an old vessel, to which had been riveted sheets of boiler iron, making an armor three inches thick. A wire connected the firing mechanism of the gun with the shore station. The gun was fired at high tide. There was a slight disturbance of the water above the gun. Then the vessel beyond the target was seen to rock and to disappear beneath the waves. Subsequent investigation showed that the target had been knocked to pieces and the hull of the vessel completely pierced by the shot. The water apparently had little effect upon the projectile. It went as accurately as though fired through the air. In the test the gun was loaded and aimed by a diver. But with the modern mechanism now available, the same results could be attained from above the water. A new field for marine attack and defense is thus disclosed. Fitted with port holes below the water line, ships could strike the enemy in the points most vulnerable and wage war with double devastation in both elements. For harbor defense the submarine battery would prove of inestimable advantage.

REWARD FOR THE LYNCHERS.

GOVERNOR DETERMINED TO BRING THE GUILTY TO JUSTICE.

HAS CLEAR EVIDENCE AS TO THREE

Five Hundred Dollars Each for the First Two Convicted; $100 for Each Additional Conviction Secured.

The governor of Georgia has offered a reward for the Ryder lynchers and the names of the most of them are in his possession. He has clear evidence as to three, and it is likely that evidence as to the others will develop on the trial. The governor offers rewards as follows:

Five hundred dollars for the first two lynchers of Dr. Ryder arrested and convicted.

One hundred dollars for each subsequent lyncher of Dr. Ryder arrested and convicted.

Two hundred and fifty dollars for each person arrested and convicted of felonious conduct in preventing the arrest or detection of parties guilty of this crime.

This action was taken without hesitation, after an hour's hearing with Dr. C. A. Ryder of Gainesville, and Prof. R. A. Ryder of Columbus.

The brothers are determined and will exert every effort to convict the men who were concerned in the Talbot county lynching.

Governor Atkinson was asked for an expression of his views, and said:

"I am determined to do all that is possible for the executive to do to bring to justice the men who are guilty of the murder of Ryder."

"There are two lines upon which we must proceed in order to rid our country of this practice which is injuring alike the character of our people and of our civilization."

"One is for the press, the pulpit and all enlightened and patriotic citizens to exert themselves to make such offenses odious until right views are recognized and conformed to by all people."

"Those who cannot be reached in this way must be reached by being made to feel the force of the strong arm of the law. They should be given to understand that when they attempt to take a prisoner from the hands of officers their own lives will be forfeited by their effort, and that in case of a successful effort they will be punished by the courts."

"There has been much said about the delays of the law, and yet to one who fully comprehends our system and its results this point will receive little consideration. We have now in our penitentiary and county chaingangs over 4,000 convicts. We have had a large number hung during my administration, and where there is an occasional instance where a case is kept in court a great while, it is a rare exception and not the rule."

"In addition to that, permit me to say that the men who lynch and take the lives of their fellow men in their own hands are not the men who are usually found on the side of law and order, and if lynching be apologized for on the ground that the law does not conform to the views of everyone, then there will never be a stop put to it."

"This being true, let apology for lynch law cease, let it be condemned in unmeasured terms, and whatever is to be said about changing the law, let it be said to the general assembly, and not for the purpose of palliating a crime lynchers are guilty of."

"I am satisfied that the good citizens of Talbot county fully realize the enormity of this offense and I expect from them that hearty co-operation which every good citizen owes to the officers of the law under which he lives."

LOOKS BAD FOR BRIDGES.

Former School Commissioner's Bondsman Surrender Him.

Former School Commissioner Bridges, of Floyd county, Ga., has been placed in jail at Rome as the result of G. J. Bryant's withdrawing from his bond. Bridges will make an effort to procure another bondsman.

In the trial of the Bridges case Wednesday the state introduced a receipt for $2,800 from to J. J. Black, tax collector, for the poll tax for 1894. This amount had never been entered on Bridges' books or accounted for in any way. The receipt was a great surprise to the defense and they seem discouraged. This makes the total shortage over $7,000.

APPOINTMENTS FROM CHAMPLAIN

Though the President is away from Washington He is Not Idle.

A Washington special says: Quite a big batch of consular appointments was announced Thursday. The president and Secretary Porter took with them to Lake Champlain several hampers of papers, and up there, away from the heat and the office-seeking crowd, the president is making appointments. His decisions are sent to Washington to be announced.

MARCHED WITH BRASS BANDS.

Miners Swoop Down Upon DeArmitt Armed with Walking Sticks.

Oak Hill, in the vicinity of Turtle Creek, Plum Creek and Sand Creek, of DeArmitt, was invaded after midnight Wednesday by an army of strikers who were on hand to attend the great mass meeting held near the mines Thursday morning.

It is estimated that by daybreak there were several thousand miners encamped upon the hills surrounding the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company's property. They came from every direction, headed by brass bands, and nearly all of them carried heavy walking sticks, and some were armed.

There were no threats of violence, however, and no indications of drinking. Many were supplied with food enough to last two days.

Immediately upon reaching Oak Hill the strikers prepared for camp. In the valley leading up from Turtle Creek to one of the New York and Cleveland mines the company had a powerful searchlight. It was kept shifting about in hopes of flanking any movement of the strikers to creep within reach of the mine unknown to the deputies, who guarded every approach. Long before daylight the strikers were up, and after eating their frugal meal, prepared for the day's work. The intention was to see as many of DeArmitt's men before they got into the pits as possible.

About 4 o'clock 1,500 strikers assembled at Turtle Creek and headed by three brass bands, with flags and banners flying, marched by the houses occupied by DeArmitt's men. The strikers hooted and yelled and then marched to the mines, where they planted themselves before the pit, thus compelling DeArmitt's men to run the gauntlet to get to work.

A short time later, Sheriff Lowry, who had been wired to for assistance, arrived from Pittsburgh with fifty deputies, armed with Winchester rifles. The strikers quietly withdrew and the new deputies were placed on guard.

When the meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock Thursday morning there were 3,000 striking miners in attendance, and before it was well under way there were 5,000 people in the vicinity.

The demonstration had no effect upon the men at Plum Creek, and all went to work.

The strikers used all their powers of persuasion upon the diggers, but none were molested and no threats were made.

President Dolan was made chairman of the meeting, and in a short speech he accused DeArmitt of insincerity. He said if DeArmitt's men did not come out, there would be a sympathy strike all over the United States.

M. P. Carriek was next introduced, and he said that workmen all over the United States were interested in this strike, because it will have a tendency to raise wages everywhere.

"If you men of the DeArmitt mines will not come out now, we will march 60,000 men here and compel you to come out, not by force, but by shame."

When Eugene V. Debs was introduced there was great enthusiasm. He said in part:

"I am here not to encourage passion but to appeal to reason. You are in the midst of the greatest contest the world has ever known. Whether you succeed or fail depends upon yourselves. In order to win, you must remain absolutely sober until this contest is over. Whisky clouds the brain, robs you of your money and makes you brutal, and also makes you do just what your enemies want you to do."

After the meeting the Sandy Creek miners returned to work, and the strikers went into camp and had lunch.

PENSION RULES REVISED.

Changes Will Make Many Modifications In Present Practices.

A thorough revision of the rules governing the adjudication of pension claims under the second section of the act of June 27, 1890, has been made by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Webster Davis at Washington, and sweeping modifications in the present practices are the result.

The changes are embodied in instructions to the commissioners of pensions, it is stated that representations were made that the present rules render the administration of the law difficult and embarrassing.

The new code, it is said, will furnish a safe, speedy and uniform system of adjusting this class of cases.

COAL SYNDICATE SUCCESSFUL.

A Big Deal In Tennessee Has Been Practically Consummated.

Mr. Henry Taylor, the representative of the English syndicate which has an option on most of the coal mines in East Tennessee, has practically closed the deal. The price approaches five million dollars and the properties employ 3,000 miners and have an output of about three million tons of coal annually.

The capitalists whom Mr. Taylor represents are partly from Boston and partly from England. The stock has already been taken and the bonds sold. Extensive improvements are contemplated in the mines and a railroad from Jellico to the sea is projected.
